Continuation of Substance of Interview including description of the general nature of what was agreed to if an agreement was reached, or any other comments: Applicant's representative argued that the prior art of record fails to teach the anticipative pressure relief control achieved by the invention. In support for his argument, Applicant's representative noted that the GB'986 reference employs ordinary pressure relief valves 22 and 24 which relieve pressure upon the reaching of an overpressure condition instead of in anticipation of an overpressure condition. Examiner agreed that the GB'986 reference failed to teach the anticipative pressure relief function but emphasized that the Krone et al. reference was used to satisfy the anticipative pressure relief function. Examiner noted that Krone et al. disclosed a means of anticipating an overpressure condition and adjusting the opening of a valve element accordingly to relieve the anticipated excess pressure. See Krone et al. col. 4 lines 45-47 and col. 6 lines 4-12. Examiner further emphasized that the GB'986 reference was used solely for the teaching that an overpressure condition can result from a pump failing to shut off. Examiner noted that the combination of Krone et al., as modified by GB'986, taught a method of anticipating an overpressure condition resulting from a pump failing to shut off and adjusting the opening of a valve element to be able to relieve the anticipated excess pressure. Accordingly, the rejections have been maintained.
